Have you heard about Power Soccer? It Rocks!

Power Soccer is the only competitive team sport in the world designed for disabled power wheelchair users. The sport is played in 15 countries and there are 60 teams in the U.S. It is governed by the U.S. Power Soccer Association (USPSA) in the U.S., and by (FIPFA) Internationally. Power Soccer is recognized as a Federation by the International Paralympic Committee, and is vying for a spot as a demonstration sport at the 2020 Olympics in Tokyo. Any athlete with a mobility impairment and at least 8 years old can play the sport, and the North Georgia Screamin' Eagles are the oldest team in Northeast Georgia.

Power Soccer positively impacts a disabled athlete's self-esteem, self-confidence, and quality of life, and it enhances communication through teamwork. Through the U.S. Power Soccer Association, social capital is being created and disabled athletes are better equipped to contribute to society and live independently. The Screamin' Eagles started in Gainesville in 2006, and the team plays in cities across the Southeast in the Southeastern League. The season is a long one and stretches from September to July. Each of our players are severely disabled and require the help of a personal assistant for personal care and to travel.

This year the team is determined to purchase better equipment, as a new chair called the Strike Force has changed the game hitting a ball over 30 mph. A StrikeForce powerchair costs between $7,700-10,000 each, and there are very few sources to pay for them. The team is currently working to modify some existing equipment with upgraded motors and electronics, which are approximately $2,500 per powerchair.

The team relies on corporate sponsorships, personal donations, and fundraising events to train and compete, and will be hosting two tournaments during the 2016-17 season at facilities in the Gainesville, GA area. Power Soccer offers sponsors the opportunity to make a difference in the lives of the disabled through sport, and when employees and customers support this mission it has shown a tendency to enhance customer loyalty and increase referrals while improving overall company morale by adding emphasis to ability.
